PROGRESS REPORT
(Bi-weekly Report for Week ending 6 April 1957)

ZAREVICH, Sergei

1. Actual Progress:

a. Code

Progress Test 20 March--"C"
Progress Test 27 March--"B"

b. No evaluation of student's progress in fieldcraft and tradecraft.

2. Staff Comments:

This student speaks his mind. Often gripes about the same things but obeys all orders given to him. He asks many questions in class. Originally, his questions were more provocative or they were posed to display his knowledge. During the last two weeks he has become more objective and his questions are genuine. He is a hard worker and seems to be highly motivated.

3. Student Comments:

On various occasions he has questioned the security set up at this school. He is very concerned over the possibility of his name leaking out. On the other hand, he confesses that although he was advised not to bring his car to Ft. Meade, he brought it anyway. He says that [] and [] are practically useless as teachers and wishes that [] could handle more classes. He thinks that P/T isn't very worthwhile but will go along if it is to be part of the schedule.

Sergei Zarevich

1. Staff Observations: This student tries to be the spokesman for the entire group. This characteristic is true in or out of the classroom. He likes to bring out controversial subject and elucidate upon them.
2. Instructor Comments: This student is very active in class discussions. At times he appears to be very opinionated and argumentative. Instructors seem to have him in control in spite of some of his provocations. He is very conscientious and somewhat proud. Of the students who were having difficulty with code, Zarevich was the first to put in extra time during the evening. Other instructors seem to feel that this student constantly seeks to display his knowledge. They also point out that sometimes his answers in class are completely illogical. This might be due to fact that he wants to get his answer out before anyone else and will say anything to do so.
3. Student Comments: Zarevich complains that he is unable to remember everything that he hears from the lecture and feels that some kind of a review system should be set up.
4. Commo Instructor Report: This man builds himself so much that a gullible person might think that he is a very nimble witted intellectual. Actually his ability to acquire completely new material (code) is mediocre. He has to practice evenings in order to keep up with his "bootlick" Pushkin. Relative Signal Corps Grade - F. Relative Class Grade - C.
